Message from the Executive Director

SOCIAL WORK TECHNICIANS

The first year of regulation for the social work technician paraprofession has continued to go very well! We have welcomed over 70 new social work technician members since registration opened in June 2024.

We are excited to have social work technicians included as NBASW members and to welcome more of them to the Association going forward!

SOCIAL WORK MONTH 2025 RESULTS

We officially finished celebrating yet another Social Work Month with our incredible members! Congratulations to this year’s Wellness Contest winners: Monique Doiron-Vautour, Haley Billings, Chantal Thanh de Alba, and Melanie Frenette. We hope everyone continues to find time to incorporate lots of wellness into their routines every day!

The new mental health and addiction public campaign, running from the beginning to the end of March, was also a great success. MH&A social workers are key to helping people around New Brunswick, and the Association was pleased to honour them and celebrate their impact with the campaign.

Annual General Meeting/Events Recap

SOCIAL WORK RECRUITMENT AND RETENTION STRATEGY

The Association has recently sent a 60-second member update on the ongoing 2023-2028 Social Work Recruitment and Retention Strategy.

The 5-year Strategy (2023-2028), led by the NBASW, brings together individuals from various government departments, health authorities, schools of social work, colleges, unions, and more in implementing the various goals and actions identified to ensure there are enough social workers in the province to meet the needs of citizens, both now and for years to come.

The Strategy is nearing the end of its second year, and we are very excited by all the important work that has been done to date! The Strategy's Steering Committee will continue to meet monthly and will continue working collaboratively to ensure the Strategy's success!

Social Work Month 2025

SOCIAL WORK MONTH RECAP

This year's Social Work Month theme was "Social Work is Everywhere." This theme highlighted the vast and diverse impact of the social work profession and the social work technician paraprofession - reaching into every corner of our communities to create meaningful change and support individuals, families, and groups. From schools to hospitals, community centres to policy-making, social workers are at the heart of social progress, championing equity, justice, and human dignity. March 2025 honoured the tireless education of social workers across Canada who make a difference everywhere, every day.

Along with sending out swag, we hosted a Wellness Contest for all members during the month, encouraging the inclusion of mental health & wellness activities in the members' daily routines. Congratulations to our winners:

Week 1: Monique Doiron-Vautour, Snowmobiling

Week 2: Haley Billings, Visit from Friends

Week 3: Chantal Thanh De Alba, Walking with Dog

Week 4: Melanie Frenette, Family Time

Congratulations are also in order for Jillian Martin, who won the April Long Weekend Giveaway.

Social workers are essential to the well-being of our communities, and we were so happy to see everyone fitting some self-care into their days. More wellness resources are available HERE!

MENTAL HEALTH & ADDICTIONS CAMPAIGN

The NBASW, in collaboration with the Government of New Brunswick's Department of Health, released a public campaign during Social Work Month 2025. The campaign focuses on mental health & addictions social workers' unique ability to see past people's pain and struggles and find potential within them.

The campaign demonstrates the difference between social workers and non-social workers in various settings, making the contrast clear through a blur effect. When people walk by or observe individuals going through mental health & addiction issues, they are almost completely obscured by blurriness. However, when a social worker sits with a blurred individual to talk, the social worker sees who they really are behind their pain and struggles.

Social workers understand that asking for help takes courage because it involves confronting difficult truths and the unknown. When their clients face challenging situations, they begin by listening carefully and creating a safe space for individuals to share their stories and set their goals.

Using their extensive education and expertise in mental health and addictions, social workers and social work technicians help guide people toward new opportunities, showing that every step forward matters, and that positive change is always possible.

Thank you to everyone who collaborated on this campaign and to everyone who helped share this important message.

NEW BRUNSWICK COALITION OF PERSONS WITH DISABILITIES

To all Social Workers in New Brunswick:

The New Brunswick Coalition of Persons with Disabilities (NBCPD) represents 35.3% of New Brunswick residents 15 years old and over with one or more disabilities. Our province saw the largest growth in disability population across Canada during the latest reporting period, an increase of 8.6%, from 28.7% to 35.3%, leaving us in a very close second place, surpassed only by Nova Scotia in terms of a disability population. Population-wise, this means there are more than 300 000 people with disabilities in New Brunswick. This also makes us the single largest demographic in the province of New Brunswick, sadly living with way too much lived experience, especially in terms of invisible disabilities that are too often overlooked and add to systemic ableism.

The NBCPD wishes to acknowledge and thank Social Workers across NB for their hard work and dedication. Without the efforts of social workers, we would face so many more barriers in this Province. We also wish to acknowledge the immense pressures you and your members face due to being under-staffed and over-burdened with responsibilities. It is unfair to expect Social Workers in NB to be a “Master of All” from cradle to grave; be it for a child with a disability, to a senior who needs accessible housing, or who just had a stroke, as well as every disjointed piece of Social Development policy for the more than 35% of NB residents with a disability. It is a true testament of your members dedication that they keep answering that call, day in and day out! I realize we are not always the kindest when we speak with social workers due to our frustrations with the system, as well as the lack of information being provided on policy changes- but take it from me, we do APPRECIATE YOU and all you do. As Chair, I receive so many calls and emails daily and there is no lack of appreciation for social workers across NB.

Together, we will make NB a better place for persons with disabilities. We need you on our team, and to keep fighting the good fight for dignity, equity and equality - for each and every resident in our Province!

Again, thank you for all you do!

Shelley Petit
Chair, NBCPD

NEW BRUNSWICK COALITION OF PERSONS WITH DISABILITIES

Rare Disability/ Chronic Illness- Volume #1

The New Brunswick Coalition of Persons with Disabilities (NBCPD) is very proud to be teaming up with the New Brunswick Association of Social Workers to provide a small introduction on some of the rare, invisible disabilities that will undoubtedly come 'across your desk' one day.

35.3% of NB residents 15 and over have one or more disabilities; and 70% of those are invisible, and often pain based. It can be hard to understand a disability you've never heard of, just ask any doctor, let alone provide the right support. This month we highlight environmental disabilities, and more specifically Multiple Chemical Sensitivity (MCS) / Toxic-Induced Loss of Sensitivity (TILT).

There were over 1.3 Canadians diagnosed with MCS (2020 census). This was a 100% increase between the 2000 and 2020, and 72% are women. What is MCS? It's a painful, chronic, multi-system condition that can develop in people of all ages, often following either a single massive exposure or repeated low-level exposures to commonly used products, and chemicals commonly released into the environment. Teachers, nurses and hairdressers, as well as those working in or around caustic chemicals are often more at risk- but no one is immune. Those with MCS are often called canaries, as they detect the most minute amount of a chemical that no one else can smell or taste, just as canaries identified gas in coal mines. All major organs are at risk due to MCS.

Treatment: Isolation-24/7/365. Life for the individual suffering from MCS becomes unbearable, especially in a world that relies so heavily on chemicals and electromagnetic radiation. If you have a client saying they smell or taste 'scents' no one else does - that the scents make them physically ill, weak, tired, angry - do not dismiss it. They are not overreacting/seeking attention, etc.

And, of course, reach out to us at the NBCPD. We will do our best to help, and if we do not have answers, we often have contacts in Canada who will.

Social work recruitment and retention in New Brunswick: What can be learnt from those who stay?

Ethical Approval:
REB#2025-12/REB 2025-010

Who we would like to talk to?

- Any current social worker registered with NBASW with 20 years or more cumulative practice experience.
- Any retired social worker, previously registered with NBSW at some point in their career, with 20 years or more accumulative practice experience.

About the study

Despite the current social work recruitment and retention crisis in New Brunswick (NBASW 2024), there are no Canadian studies that have explored the factors that enable social workers to remain in practice over the longer term. This study aims to explore the insights, perspectives, and experiences of long-term retention by asking social workers the following questions:

- What factors contribute to social workers decision making to stay in the profession?
- What are the career pathways for social workers in New Brunswick?
- How have these career pathways contributed to longevity of practice?

The findings will have important implications for recruitment and retention policy development in New Brunswick and potentially more widely across Canada.

What will it involve?

1x 90 minute face to face interview in person or virtually via a video conferencing platform and the potential for a follow up interview should clarification or further discussion be required.

When to choose rental car insurance

Planning a summer vacation or road trip? Car rental companies offer many types of insurance, including collision, accident benefits, personal property, and liability coverage. But do you need it if you already have an auto policy with us?

Are you already covered?

You may not need extra rental car insurance if you have any of the following:

- A Co-operators' auto policy. Your auto policy includes Accident Benefits, which offers coverage for personal injury as a result of an accident.
- Our optional liability for damage to non-owned vehicle endorsement. This covers vehicles you drive but don't own, including rental vehicles, for yourself and anyone listed on your policy.
- Homeowners or tenants insurance. Your home insurance covers your personal property, so you don't need Personal Effects insurance from the rental company.
- An eligible credit card. Some credit cards offer damage, theft, accident, and health protection, but often with limits. To get coverage, you need to use the card to reserve and pay for the rental. Always call your credit card company to discuss details ahead of your trip.

How does our coverage work?

Let's say you're on a road trip to see the natural beauty along Canada's highways. You find yourself in an accident with your rental car that also destroys your new $5,000 camera.

Even if you didn't buy the rental insurance, as long as you have the liability for damage to non-owned vehicle endorsement on your Co-operators auto policy, your auto and home policies cover both car and camera. All you'll need to do is make one quick call to start your claim, and we'll take care of the rest.

When do you need rental car insurance?

You should buy rental car insurance if:

- You don't have an auto or homeowners/tenant policy with us.
- Your current auto policy doesn't have liability for damage to non-owned vehicle coverage.
- You're insured only under a commercial car insurance policy.
- You don't want the risk of paying a high deductible.
- You're travelling outside of Canada or the U.S.
- You're renting a commercial vehicle.

Other conditions apply when it comes to what's included in your auto insurance coverage. We'll make sure you have the protection you need at an affordable price.

Contact us at 1-800-387-1963 to talk about what your insurance policy can do for you.
